Weird stuff has been happening at the Open Championship for the past few days. And if it sounds like you are reading The Onion, that is because you are. The golf tournament is scheduled for Thursday through Sunday, June 16-19, and if you haven't heard, a weird weather pattern — one of the first in about 100 years — moved in just as Royal Lytham & St. Annes was about to start. The temperatures were cool, and thunderstorms (or, at least, rumbles of thunder) were frequent. The forecast showed a chance of thunderstorms on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. The clouds were supposed to clear up, but apparently not enough to appease the critics of the Open. Or maybe the rain could have been enough. Either way, golf fans who tuned in to watch the first three days of the tournament on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday are all thinking, "Wait, what? Did the rain just come?" In an effort to help answer that question, we are going to do a deep dive into the video of the Open from all three days. If you think you know what you're looking at, you probably do. And if you think you're going to see a different golfer every time you watch, you're right. That's what it is, it's The Open Championship. No, it's not the greatest video compilation of the year yet (that's still to come), but it is pretty interesting. In fact, it's as interesting as the weather we saw, which is saying a lot. The first video contains some shots of a player with a shoe problem — the kind of "problem" that involves getting a shoe torn off his foot. This is a relatively new (and costly) technology, but it can make life much easier for a golfer. You don't have to struggle to find the ball because your foot is stuck in the sand or mud. The second video is from a couple of years ago. On the first round of the U.S.
